

List of U.S. states by historical population

This is a list of U.S. states by historical population, as enumerated every decade by the United States Census. As required by the United States Constitution, a census has been conducted every 10 years since 1790. Although the decennial census collects a variety of information that used in demographic studies, marketing, and other enterprises, the purpose of the census as stated in the Constitution is to produce an "actual enumeration" of the number of persons in the states in order to calculate their Congressional apportionment.

As the United States has grown in area and population, new states have been formed out of U.S. territories or the division of existing states. The population figures provided here reflect modern state boundaries. Shaded areas of the tables indicate census years when a territory or the part of another state had not yet been admitted as a new state.

The population growth of each U.S. state between 1970 and 2010. Click on this map to see the scale/key for this map.

Notes

- The District of Columbia is not a state but was created with the passage of the Residence Act of 1790. The territory that formed that federal capital was originally donated by both Maryland and Virginia; however, the Virginia portion was returned by Congress in 1846.
- Previously a part of the Orleans Territory.
- Between 1790 and 1820, the District of Maine was part of the state of Massachusetts.
- Starting with the 1800 Census, Maryland donated territory to create the District of Columbia.
- Figures recorded for Dakota Territory by the censuses of 1860, 1870, and 1880 are listed here as belonging to South Dakota.
- Vermont was enumerated in the 1790 Census but was only admitted as a state in 1791.
- Between 1790 and 1860, the state of West Virginia was part of Virginia. In addition, between the Censuses of 1800 and 1840, territory donated by the state of Virginia formed a portion of District of Columbia but the land was returned in 1846.
- Between 1790 and 1860, the state of West Virginia was part of Virginia; the data for each states reflect the present-day boundaries.
- Not including the Virginia counties that formed the new state of West Virginia in 1863, but includes the enslaved population in the returned land that had been donated to form the District of Columbia.
- These figures are for the Virginia counties that formed the state of West Virginia in 1863.
- Figure includes Native American reservations in the United States. There were 62,622,250 persons not on reservations in 1890.
